KIWANIS TALKS ON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

No Action Taken On Matter—Goes to Committee

MUCH INTEREST

Dr. H. E. Douglas and T. R. Hill Discuss Merits of Organization
With Full-Time
Secretary

Considerable interest was aroused at the Kiwanis club today over the proposition of a Chamber of Commerce for Middlesboro. The meeting adjourned, however, before the discussion could come to a head and the matter was disposed of in the usual fatal way, referred to a committee. Several men were scheduled to speak on the subject but only Dr. H. E. Douglas and T. R. Hill had time to be heard. Dr. Douglas, speaking first, said he believed in Middlesboro and its possibilities, but that he did not believe it could develop much farther if it did not have some kind of organization to advertise it. "I believe Middlesboro has as much to offer people seeking a place to make more money as any other town of like size that I know of," he said. "The trouble is that there is no person or group of persons to invite or influence these people here."

The Kiwanis club and Merchants' Association have entirely different functions, he brought out. "I believe it is essential for holding the people who are here and for bringing more to this town to have a man, like a Chamber of Commerce secretary, whose whole business it is to boost and advertise Middlesboro."

T. R. Hill admitted at the start that he was lukewarm on the subject, not that he didn't believe in a Chamber of Commerce, but that he didn't believe that this town could finance the kind of secretary it would need to put over the things it wanted. Mr. Hill's suggestion was that the Kiwanis club or Merchants' Association, combined or singly, take over the functions of a Chamber of Commerce and hire a live school teacher or college boy during his three months' vacation this summer to see what could be done in this way.

Just before the meeting adjourned Judge T. G. Anderson and Supt. J. W. Bradner each spoke a few words favoring a Chamber of Commerce or some thing to answer its purpose.

The committee named to work out further plans on the matter was composed of T. R. Hill, J. W. Bradner and A. P. Jacobs.

The Kiwanis club meeting today was a very live one and well-attended. There were several musical numbers and the Baptist revival singer, E. L. Wolslagle, sang a solo. Two new members, Charles Cochran and Rev. W. B. Archer, were introduced. Announcement was made of the Clean-Up Week next week.

GOLF COURSE MAP FOR TOURNAMENT

To Be Presented to State Tourney
Committee—Shows Details of Golf Course

The first map ever to be made of the Middlesboro Country club golf course has been finished by F. S. Lee and will be presented to the state tournament committee as an important argument in winning the trophy here this year. F. S. Lee, president of the local club, will go to Louisville today with the map.

The drawing which is expected in several colors shows effectively the advantages of the golf course, which admirably fit it for the tournament. The fairways, trees and natural handicaps are all shown, together with the distances.

It is pointed out that the map will be presented to the state committee of the state and that a number of decisions will be made from it for the benefit of the players.

The Amazing Story

Al Jennings, one-time train bandit, now an evangelist, told the Senate oil investigating committee that the late Duke Hanson told him (Jennings) Hanson gave a million dollars in the last presidential campaign.

COAL CONDITIONS TO IMPROVE SOON

Resumption of Lake Business Soon
Will Be Stimulus, Local Operators Say

Through many mines are running only part time and some have entirely stopped work in this vicinity, the outlook for the business is not considered bad by local operators.

A member of the Log Mountain Coal company firm announced this morning that they expected to resume their business around the Great Lakes within thirty days. The coming of spring which melts the ice on these waterways and makes possible boat transportation always opens the trade there. A great part of the business of this firm is in the lake regions.

Strikes in other parts of the country are also expected to have a salutary effect on the coal industry here. Local companies are expecting business on account of this condition if it continues for any great length of time.

All things considered, the operators seem more optimistic over the outlook than the general public. The scale of wages here which is lower than in some other parts of the country is expected to eventually bring favorable results if it does not in the near future.

Half Man, Half Brute Fiction Spreads Over This Entire Section

In keeping with the policy to always confine the location of the haunts of the "Red Devil" to other localities, residents of other parts of this section have it that the strange creature has been in Middlesboro.

A man was here from Harlan recently who had heard the unearthly demon had been captured in Middlesboro and confined in jail here. No doubt that this would happen if he were captured here for creatures as formidable have been lodged behind the bars of the city bastille but no one here even claims to have seen the awful monster.

People here have heard rumors that the monster has chosen adjacent parts of Virginia for its principal habitat. In fact it seems to be a sort of frightful will-o'-the-wisp, and direct information concerning it is difficult to obtain.

Nearly two weeks ago it was that the "devil" first broke into print. A story carried by a Roanoke newspaper told of his depredations in a mountain community of Southwest Virginia. There, it was said, he caused himself by slaying stock, terrorizing school children and throwing stones into the hearts of the sturdy mountaineers.

Next it would seem that the creature had of Southwest Virginia and decided to acquire for a spell in East Tennessee. At any rate he was said to have been seen in the vicinity of Knoxville.

The monster intruder is described as being approximately physically once when seen by the owner of a country with black and white and the story.

DISMISSED WHEN HE TALKED TO OIL COMMITTEE

Army Air Service Legal Adviser Is Fired

LANE TELLS STORY

Says Personal Files Riffled, Papers On Aircraft Suit of Government Had Been Examined

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Apr. 3.—Thomas F. Lane, until a week ago legal adviser to the chief of the army air service, told the Senate Daugherty investigating committee today he had been ordered by Captain W. F. Volant of the air service to stay away from the committee. When he refused to be dictated to he said he was "dismissed" from the air service. The committee decided to call Volant.

Lane asserted there was some ulterior purpose for his dismissal. He told the committee papers from his personal files had been removed which had connection with the government suit in the air craft case and included papers which had gone through hands in following up fifty million dollars worth of war arms.

Says Louisville High School Girls Skip Classes to Assist Bootleggers Transport Liquor

By Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Apr. 3.—Several high school girls are skipping classes once or twice a week and using their automobiles to transport whiskey for well-known bootleggers and liquor operators according to P. Green Miller, Federal prohibition agent for Kentucky and Tennessee. It is known that a group of Louisville girls are operating on a salary basis, Miller said. He declined to make names of alleged offenders known. He said that under cover, men were instructed to watch for these girls and when they are arrested, to jail them and take their finger prints.

MILWAUKEE ELECTS SOCIALIST MAYOR

Smith Is Wisconsin Democrats' (Voice)
—McAdoo Leads In Iowa

By Associated Press.
MILWAUKEE, Apr. 3.—Daniel Hoan, socialist, was re-elected mayor of Milwaukee over David S. Rose in a non-partisan election here by a majority of 18,700, returns today showed. Returns from half the precincts in the state in a state-wide primary for delegates at large to national conventions give LaFollette a vote twice that of Coolidge. The latter however elected two delegates in the first district. The delegates pledged to Governor Al Smith of New York on the Democratic side carried Milwaukee, over W. G. McAdoo by about five thousand with a few precincts missing. In the state, Smith also is maintaining a comfortable lead.

DAVENPORT, Apr. 3.—An Iowa delegation favorable to W. G. McAdoo was apparently assured at the Democratic State Convention here today when nine of eleven congressional districts in the caucus favored McAdoo's manager as Iowa national committeeman.

EWING MAN DOES $13,000 HIDE BUSINESS ANNUALLY

M. F. Breeding of Ewing, who was in Middlesboro yesterday, reports that he did a $13,000 business in furs and hides last year.

His territory includes adjacent parts of Tennessee and Virginia as well as Middlesboro and vicinity. He buys the hides from local dealers or individuals and sells the big fur markets. Though most of the business is done during the winter when fur is in demand, he expects to have about two months more of work in this line this spring.

MR. UNDERWOOD AS NOMINEE

It is possible that Senator Underwood will be the Democratic nominee for president. It is possible but hardly probable that he will be elected. There is no one on either side of the Senate who can make a better partisan speech and no one who can better frame a bill. It is only giving the man from Alabama his just dues to say this and when this is said there is little more to be said in his favor.

The senator from Alabama in a large measure, knows the facts of our history. He undoubtedly knows that our great manufacturing activity dates its beginning to the Jefferson embargo and its exclusion of foreign goods—established by the administration of the patron saint of the party for which he proposes himself as the standard bearer. The Non-Intercourse act and the war of '12 fostered manufacturing in the United States.

It was under Jefferson that the infant industries of the nation had their birth. Under Madison tariff schedules were doubled, and in the administration of Monroe, John C. Calhoun planned a great industrial system for the South. No doubt Mr. Underwood knows a measure of the history of the section he is supposed to represent.

The past two decades has brought to Mr. Underwood's attention the growth of the manufacturing industry of the South. Cheap labor and cheap power are building a new South more and more every year. The Alabama Senator has only to go about his own state to be made aware of this.

But in the face of history and in the full light of first hand knowledge, Mr. Underwood continues to be an avowed free trader. He has seen the development of the southeastern portion of the United States—a development which in no wise could have been possible had it not been for the tariff that protected it. He still allows or masterful partisanship to rule him and sets party above the best interests of his own section of the country. Just how will Mr. Underwood—the adroit—justify himself to the voters in the great industrial centers of the South?

MAKING A GARDEN

It is now time to begin garden making. This popular and profitable spring pastime is no longer confined to the residents of rural sections but is being adopted more and more by urban dwellers as a means of combating the high cost of living during the summer.

There are not many lots which do not have space sufficient to make a garden. With proper planning and careful cultivation a small fraction of an acre can be made to yield surprising profits in the form of fresh vegetables daily during the summer. Not only can they be produced at less expense than those bought on the markets but their freshness is assured.

Aside from the advantages subsequently enumerated, the making of a garden affords wholesome exercise for muscles which have become soft and flabby from idleness in less arduous occupations. Tabooed in all of us is the desire for recreation with Nature in the very spring months. This natural inclination is a very pleasing manner by which to work in the garden. The odor of fresh earth and the knowledge that something useful is being created are appreciated in all wise seasons have experienced them.

Backyard garden making was urged

FASHION'S PARADE

Hal Cockran's DAILY POEM

LET'S stand upon any corner or most any town at all, and watch the march of the people going by. Let's view the little youngsters and the grown-ups short and tall—just give them all the overlooking eye. There's Mrs. Anybody, with a coat that's made of mink; her husband's by her side in brand new gloves. No doubt the Mrs. wonders what the neighbors all will think, for city is a thing-a woman loves.

And little Willie Jones is out, all dressed up in spats and spurs. The shoes he wears are patterned after dad. He hopes that folks who see him will remark he's a man. You know things like that make youngsters glad.

Fast Sister Susie goes parade in fancy dress of blue. She has some brilliant ribbons in her hair. She struts around where folks may see—she has naught else to do. She simply feels the spirit in the air.

What spirit, you are asking? Well, it comes but once a year. The aftermath of rushing springtime trade. When fancy frocks and new things on sidewalks will appear as folks take summer garments on parade.

Investigations—Hooch—Europe—Cardinals

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Apr. 3.—Atty. Gen. Daugherty having quit, the investigation forces in Congress have started after Secretary Mellon.

A resolution's been introduced already questioning the right of a man with Mellon's huge business interests to hold the treasury job. It's understood Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is next on the list. Then Secretary of Commerce Hoover. In fact, it's predicted no cabinet member will be neglected. What charges will be made are not disclosed. Perhaps the investigators haven't decided yet.

Hooch

Hooch figures largely in the week's news.

New Jersey notoriously is the home of trusts. Jersey bootleggers conspired "in restraint of trade," to keep Pennsylvania booze from competing with their state's home product. Result, a moonshiners' quarrel which the Jersey courts are trying as a liquor graft case.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton
NO 12—SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

The patent-leather cat, rubber dog and wooden duck were arguing.

"Oh, dear," said the wooden rabbit, "Doofunny Land you'll be a grand place if it were not for that rubber dog."

"And I think that it would be a fine place if it were not for that awful cat," sneaked the little tin mouse. "Every time I move I seem to run into him, and he has such terrible eyes and long spiky whiskers. I get paralyzed with fright, so I do."

"If you want to know what real trouble is," cried a hoarse voice, "just look at me. I shiver all over. I just hopped past that old wooden waddle duck and he snapped at me with his old scissor bill. I thought that I would be safe when I came to Doofunny Land. But it seems that I was mistaken. Ducks are far fiercer than dogs and cats," said the puffy cotton frog.

Mister Puz Witz, the pipe cleaner man, turned to the Twins. "Do you hear that?" he said. "It's time I was putting an end to all this nonsense. If Doofunny can't be a peaceful place—what is the use of it, I'd like to know?"

"Yes, I should like to know, too," agreed Nancy. "The Fairy Queen told us that Doofunny Land was a funny place."

"And so it is," said the Fairy Queen. "The Twins followed him, and by and by he came to the place where the teddy bear was."

"Buay, Mister Bear," asked Mister Puz Witz.

"Nup," said the bear. "Not doing any thing."

"Ah, now," said he, "I'll tell you why I am going to eat you." (To Be Continued)

FABLES ON HEALTH

Two of Mr. Mann's youngsters turned up their noses at the very mention of milk.

"Well, you know, mother, there are lots of things I don't eat and I never would drink milk," Mr. Mann would say.

"Maybe that's one of the troubles with the children," commented the wise Mrs. Mann. "They probably heard you say something about milk and never have forgotten it. All it would take to get them drinking it would be a little encouraging, with some talks on milk generally."

The importance of good, clean milk in the successful growth and development of the child cannot be overestimated.

There is generally a reason behind why children do not like milk, and mothers and fathers should leave no stone unturned to find out what it is and forever kill the prejudice.

It is, of course, very important that the milk be uncontaminated, for many epidemics, bringing sickness and death, have been traced to poor milk. But if your city has a careful inspection system there should be little ground for worry or fear.

Give the children plenty of fresh, rich milk. Milk with cream in it. In the long run it is one of the cheapest of health bringers. If you have to cut expenses elsewhere, don't deny the children their milk.

The same breads are used in the reducing diet that are used in the reducing diet but plenty of butter should be included if you are gaining and sweets as desired. Raisins and eggs are not used in the reducing breads.

The Art Of Beauty

By E. M. DOUGLAS

The Sparkling Blonde

THE blonde type is the active type, say anthropological experts. The blonde Renaissance girls are the go-getters of the world. They are not the somber introspective, nor the languorous, sensuous beauties that one finds among the dark haired types. And their gay electric charm proves irresistible to men of many moods and types. The active blonde will cut her hair according to the latest whim of fashion. She will dye it out because it is so active in the hair. Her skin is dazzlingly brilliant and to blend with it she needs the natural shade of powder most suitable. She uses Mandarine with its orange tone to give a piquant color to her cheeks and bring a sparkle to the high powered beam of her eyes. Her lips small and well turned she emphasizes with a matching lipstick. Her clothes can be extreme. Whatever type she chooses, she may wear the extreme manifestation of it. If she wears a period frock of the Renaissance period, it may be more elaborately decorated than others; if she chooses to dine in a sheathed Egyptian gown, it can be straighter in line and more vividly colored than her more modern dress. She is a child of the sun, and she knows it. She is a child of the sun, and she knows it. She is a child of the sun, and she knows it.

The sparkling blonde is a modern incarnation of those fascinating French beauties who live to please in the pages of mousy chronicles—and yet whose names will have the power to conjure up a vision of their charms—Mignon Lenoir, Gabrielle d'Estrees, Madame de Mazarin, whose allure was so much in the regularity of their features, as in the radiant clarity of their complexions, their exquisite darkness, and the magnetism which radiated from them. And how simple life would be if it were not for that little white beauty!

HIGH QUALITY MARBLE IS FOUND NEAR JELLICO

JELLICO, Tenn., April 3.—Some weeks ago a large quantity of marble was discovered by Silas Newman and Dr. A. E. Waring on the Dr. Rose property opposite High Cliff. This discovery set others to searching with the result that a company composed of E. L. Smith, J. T. Moore, Alex. Houser, Ed. Beaver and Peter Zechini have leased the acres on Mr. Zechini's property, on which gray marble of a high quality has been found in a depth which will approach 300 feet in thickness. Samples have been sent to Knoxville for polishing and will be back in a few days.

Another interesting feature of this find is the fact that it is near the coal incline and could be carried direct to the cars for loading.

In addition to the marble a high grade of what appears to be Bedford stone has also been found.

Nature has indeed been lavish in respect to the property owned by Mr. Zechini. Coal of high quality, an exceptional grade of clay in various grades running from a clay suitable for brick to one suitable for high quality pottery, and now marble,

BUS TRANSPORTATION SHOWS RAPID EXPANSION

Latest type of White Model 50-A De Luxe Bus is extremely low, affording greater safety and comfort.

Recognition of the motor bus as a permanent factor in transportation has been made clear in 20 states by their enactment of regulations relating to busses as common carriers; such legislation was passed in six of these states during 1923.

The tremendous growth of travel by bus in every state is shown by 1923 figures in every case where reports have been received. New bus lines have been established in large numbers, routes have been extended and fleets have been increased. More than 40,000 busses are now operated in the United States by bus and railway companies.

Yet with all this rapid expansion of the bus field, the position of the electric railways in general greatly improved during the past year. All records for passengers carried by the tractions were broken. Thus it is shown that busses have by no means "ruined" the business of the electric carriers, but on the contrary have served as auxiliary and supplementary units, often creating new traffic by their service as feeders.

The proof of bus usefulness in this connection is demonstrated by the fact that more than 100 electric lines own and operate approximately 1,000 busses, of which 500 are Whites alone.

As the bus more firmly establishes itself as an essential factor in unified transportation, improvements are being made constantly in its design, as illustrated in the latest type of White Model 50-A, de luxe bus shown here. It is extremely low and includes every perfected feature of the most modern coach equipment.

Woman Who Wrote of Famer Finally Achieves it Herself

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, March 28.—The muse must have chuckled merrily when they urged Elizabeth Irons, "Towers of Fame." It was their little joke.

That story, less than 2,000 words in length, has raised Mrs. Folsom from semi-obscure to just what her wisely chosen title indicates—Towers of Fame.

It won for her the 1923 award by the O. Henry Memorial of the Society of Arts and Sciences as the best short story less than 2,000 words long.

The prize-winning story was first published in "McClure's" in August 1922. Since then it has been reprinted once in "Current Opinion" and again in a volume of prize stories.

Mrs. Folsom, "Towers of Fame," has all the smatch of an original O. Henry story. It carries you on a wave of suspense to the last few paragraphs and then gives you a crashing surprise.

But after all, it is fiction. Mrs. Folsom's real life story is more touching, more human, more—well, let us say—satisfying than any fiction story.

She was born and educated in Bloomington, Ill. As a girl and a bride she was a member of the social set. Then necessity sent her out into the working world. She decided newspaper work was her field.

Followed 14 years of reporting on a Bloomington paper. Most of it was on the courthouse run. She came into close contact with raw life.
